

November 18, 2025: On Finding a Reason Why

To all of the slaves that are being forced to try and cause harm to me every day:

I feel sorry for you and I am sorry that your life has been reduced to intentionally harming others for your own survival.

To all of those 'masters' that are causing the community to wage war on one another for your own gains:

I am encouraging you all to evaluate, within yourselves, what it is that is missing or lacking from your life that is causing you to wage this war against other members of your own species.

Obviously, your life is missing something extremely important and I, sincerely, hope that you find it - for your own sake, for my sake, and for the sake of all of humanity.